NOTES AND NEWS

Autumn Term 1978

After a curiously slow start the new school year soon found the school bustling with activity as usual, reaching the zenith at the end of term with the excitement of Christmas festivities. Highlights of the term included a sixth form Art trip to Paris which gave pupils an opportunity to study the works of art in Le Louvre and other art galleries, or so we are told! Teams from the school took part in a debating competition organised by B.B.C. Radio Birmingham and also in a public speaking competition. The choral society and music ensemble gave two highly-praised concerts at the parish church of Coughton and Alcester. On a lighter note, visits were made to Wembley to the U.S.S.R. Gymnastics Exhibition, and to 'The Other Place' at Stratford-upon-Avon to see the dress-rehearsal of 'Hippolytus'.

Other more academically orientated excursions by senior members of the school included visits to Birmingham Universities for lectures on subjects ranging from 'Hamlet' to Physics and Economics. Within school, fund-raising activities were continued with enthusiasm. A coffee morning was held in November which raised a considerable sum for the mini-bus fund. Other fund-raising activities included the sale of coffee during break and lunch hours by Mr. Johnson and the lower sixth, and a sponsored 'Uni-hock' nobly organised by the second form. During the last few weeks of term many brains were stirred into action when Mrs. Ince tried and tested pupils in preliminary rounds of a competition to choose a team for the 'Schools Challenge', an inter-school quiz on the lines of the University Challenge competition. The Christmas activities included the Carol Service in St Nicholas's Church, Alcester, the Junior party given by the Upper sixth, and a sherry and mince pie party to which the sixth form invited the staff; these were enjoyed by everyone concerned.

Spring Term 1979

This wintry term opened with many pupils enjoying the sunshine of Bulgaria on a skiing holiday guided by the now experienced Mr. Micklethwaite. Such weather was not found in North Wales, however, where the lower sixth geography group found their visit to Marle Hall a real test against the elements, with the wind claiming many a field sketch before the week was through.

Apart from these 'athletic' activities the term also saw the school entering the Schools Challenge quiz for the first time. After many inter-school eliminating heats the final team was chosen and conclusively defeated a much larger Coventry school in the first round. However, the school was beaten in the next round by the eventual winners, Rugby School. In the debating competition the school team was a little more successful, reaching the semi-finals where they were narrowly beaten by the Bidford High School team.

Theatrical entertainment was provided by many of the younger pupils in the school's production of "Toad of Toad Hall", organised by Mr. Turner.

The end of term activities were dominated by a Lower sixth versus Upper sixth three-legged, fancy dress football match in which normally studious sixth formers were seen disguised in costumes such as the Incredible Hulk, John Travolta and an SP11 battery. The money raised at the match amounted to £17 and was sent to the Midland Society for the Blind.

Summer Term 1979

This busy term opened with the annual invasion of Marle Hall by the fourth forms to study all aspects of this scenic part of North Wales.

It was the school's turn to play host when members of the lower school accommodated pupils from Loroux-Bottereau on an educational exchange. The children had lessons in school with their own teachers and also visited many places of interest during the stay. A disco was organised as a farewell party for the visitors and it is hoped that there will be a return visit to France in the autumn term.

After this the school was quickly over-taken with election fever and so Mr. Turner suggested that we have our own election debate. With candidates from the senior part of the school, all the major parties were represented and the school voted with the nation, a Conservative victory.

The fund raising activities of the school paid dividends when we purchased our new minibus. The maiden voyage proved to be a tough one carrying the lower sixth biology group to North Wales but thankfully the bus survived and was returned all in one piece just in time to be displayed at the Spring Fayre. This year's Fayre was blessed with sunny weather and well over £900 was raised.

Right up to the end of term there were many trips including sixth form visits to Kew Gardens, Lanchester Polytechnic and other forms in the school visited the Royal Show.

The sunshine and the firm track on Sports Day promoted many record-breaking performances and proved one of the closest fought and most enjoyable Sports days for many years with a number of new "novelty" races.

Mr. Brinson and the musicians of the school certainly got it right on the night in the school's summer concert where the audience was entertained with music ranging from Mozart to the school's own pop group "Isis".

SPEECH DAY

On Friday, 30th March, the proceedings opened with a group of school musicians playing the first movement from the Concerto in E Minor, op. 3, No. 11, by M. C. Festing.

Full Colours: H. Thompson.

Half Colours: J. Amor, J. Stevens, B. Foster. E. McCarthy.

The Old Students Match was won 3—1.

A Mixed match against Evesham College was won 2—1.

The 1st XI has done remarkably well this year considering that about half of the team are 4th formers. After a season together these 4th formers combined with the present lower 6th 'veterans' and 5th formers should ensure an even stronger team next year.

Hockey in the lower school also shows promise for future good 1st XI's.

Three people played for county teams this season:

A. Hunt for Warwickshire U18 1st XI.

J. Whinn for Warwickshire U18 2nd XI.

B. Foster for Warwickshire U16 1st XI.

Anne Hunt (L6N)

TENNIS

The 1st VI won one match and lost one. They were also defeated by the Old Scholars in a close match. A Junior VI lost 5—4 to Prince Henry's 2nd VI.

In the school tennis tournament, Helen Thompson won the singles for the 4th year in succession, beating Anne Hunt. Jane Whinn and Anne Hunt beat Helen Thompson and Elizabeth McCarthy in the doubles. The junior singles was won by Rachel Baker and the doubles by Jacqueline Collison and Nicola Hancox.

ROUNDERS

Rounders has suffered this year due to bad weather. The 3rd year team won their one match against Chipping Campden but the 2nd year team lost to the same school. House rounders matches revived enthusiasm for the game at the end of the summer term.

BOYS' GAMES

RUGBY

1st XV: played 11, won 4. Captain: Jonathan Hallam.

2nd XV: played 1, won 0. Captain: Stephen Dyer.

In spite of the fact that only four matches were won, the 1st XV pack developed into a powerful unit, well led by Jonathan Hallam. The young three-quarters were often under pressure from older and heavier opponents.

The 'past and present' 1st XV soundly defeated the Alcester Rugby Club by more than thirty points on Boxing Day for the School's first win in this series of matches.

Colours awarded to: Digby Smart, Jonathan Hallam, Patrick Seeney, David Shore, Keith Evans, Andrew Phelps.

U15 XV: played 7, won 4. Captain: Adrian Blundell.

This team was developing into an outstanding attacking formation by the end of the season. Gregory Hickin played regularly for South Warwickshire on the wing.

U14 XV: played 5, won 0. Captain: Stephen Shirley.

Unfortunately the lack of all round size in this team meant that they found it difficult to compete on anything like equal terms. Stephen Shirley played for South Warwickshire regularly on the wing.

U13 XV: played 3, won 0. Captain: Darren Blewett.

U12 XV: played 1, won 0.

SOCCER

U16 XI: played 1, won 0. Captain: Chris Ashton.

U15 XI: played 4, won 0. Captain: Neil Edkins.

U14 XI: played 8, won 1. Captain: Glenn Danks.

DU13 XI: played 5, won 2. Captain: Nicholas Edwards.

U12 XI: played 2, won 2.

BADMINTON CLUB

The first year's badminton club, run by Mrs. Matthews, takes place on Thursday lunchtimes and is attended by about ten up-and-coming young players.

After school there is also a club for those keen enough to stay behind for extra coaching. The junior group is not quite up to Olympic qualifying standards as yet, and so have not entered any competitions.

There is also a senior club on Tuesdays which is run by Mr. Micklethwaite and fourth year members have this year entered a competition.

Lucy Matthews, 2S.

TRAMPOLINE CLUB

A trampoline club, which meets every Friday dinner time in the hall, has now been formed by Mr. Cowell.

Here we learn the basics of trampolining, gradually improving and learning more advanced movements and routines as we prepare for trampolining awards.

Jane Stevens (L6W)

BRIDGE CLUB

The club had a very good start to the year with many enthusiastic members in the lower forms. It is hoped to hold regular evening sessions in the next academic year when perhaps the more senior members will be able to pass on their expertise to the juniors. We look forward to re-establishing a team to play duplicate bridge with the neighbouring schools in the near future.

C.M.H.

THE DEBATING SOCIETY

During the course of the school year this society has flourished with attendances of between thirty and fifty at each debate. We have debated a number of controversial issues ranging from euthanasia and the problem of the Vietnamese refugees, to fox-hunting and nuclear disarmament. However, not all of the debates have been on such a serious level, and we recently debated the motion that, "This house believes that a Woman's place is in the home". Needless to say, this motion was heavily defeated. All of the debates have been thoroughly enjoyed, with speakers of a very high standard. Speeches from the floor have also been numerous, and have made a worthy contribution to the debates. Recently a committee was elected for the coming year, including Julie Hall and Lynne Silverstone as chairman and vice-chairman respectively with Amanda Wearing acting as secretary. We are at present organising a debate upon the topical issue of capital punishment and we are looking forward to future debates.

Amanda Wearing, 5M.

THE PUBLIC SPEAKING COMPETITION

In October, the school entered this annual competition held by the United Kingdom Federation of Business and Professional Women. Our team consisted of Anne Griffiths who was the main speaker, Julie Taylor who acted as chairwoman, and Sarah-Jane Plant who proposed the vote of thanks.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Woodcock, Anne spoke forcibly on the subject of Vivisection, but we met with considerable opposition from Bidford High School and two Shotton Girls' Grammar School teams, one of which went on to the second round.

However, as this was the first time the school had entered the competition, everyone was pleased with the performance and a great deal of valuable experience was gained.

Thanks are due to Mrs. Woodcock for her assistance beforehand.

Sarah-Jane Plant, 4M.

"THE FLOOR IS YOURS"

During the autumn term, a team from Alcester Grammar School was invited to take part in a debating competition organised by B.B.C. Radio Birmingham.

"The Floor is Yours" is mainly aimed at Debating Societies and Speaking clubs, consequently there were only a few schools taking part.

Our team consisted of Julie Hall, Amanda Wearing and Jonathan Hallam who proposed the motion "This house believes that good manners are out of fashion." The format of the competition, which took place at Pebble Mill, was very different from any other debate which we had taken part in and the judges gave their marks taking into consideration the fact that over the radio it would only be heard and not seen.

The debate was won by the opposition, three able debaters from Stoke Park School, Coventry. However, I think our team benefitted from the experience they gained against such tough opposition and by the novel experience of taking part in a radio debate. In fact the evening was thoroughly enjoyable, particularly for our group of supporters who found the experience of taking part in a radio recording very enlightening!

Julie Hall, 4S.

RUSSIAN GYMNASTIC DISPLAY

On Friday, 10th November, a group of nine girls were taken, by Mr. and Mrs. Cowell, to watch the U.S.S.R. Gymnastic and Acrobatic display teams in action, at the Wembley Arena in London.

Leaving the school at 3.45 p.m. we arrived at the performance, at 7.30 p.m. There were quite a few new faces in the team of gymnasts, but it also included some better known gymnasts i.e. Nelli Kim, Elena Moukina, Svetlana Grosdova, Nicolai Andrianov, Alexander Detiatin, many of whom competed in the World Championships.

We were entertained by a most spectacular performance from the Gymnastic and Acrobatic display teams.

It was a night to remember, a most exciting evening for all.

Fiona Apsley, 1S.

SPONSORED 'UNI-HOC'

Whoever said that man was descended from the apes would have jumped for joy if he had seen Stephen McCarthy refereeing at form 2M's sponsored Uni-hoc in January. Hardly a moment went by without Stephen clambering up the hall wall-bars in a desperate attempt to flee the racing children.

With lethal uni-hoc sticks in hand the class made an enormous effort to raise money for a much needed Kidney dialysis machine. This tragic case of the murder of a uni-hoc ball resulted in the raising of £80 which was gladly accepted by the Stephen Williams fund.

The slightly more sensible of the class decided to take the less dangerous task of walking from the Ridgeway to Aston Cantlow. The funds raised from this event added an extra £5 to the money raised from the earlier happening. All enjoyed themselves though it was reported that the referee was last seen swinging from a tree while attempting to recuperate after his trying experience.

SKI-TRIP TO BULGARIA - FEBRUARY 1979

This year the destination of the party going on the annual ski-trip was behind the iron curtain in Bulgaria, in the resort of Pamporovo. We set off early on the morning of the 20th February and after a tiring journey by coach and air we eventually arrived at the Hotel Orpheus in time for our evening meal.

Next morning, after being equipped with skis and boots, we were divided into groups and our skiing began. After the first couple of days most of us had found our skiing legs and we went up to higher slopes in the chair-lift which was quite enjoyable once we had negotiated the problem of getting on and off.

On the first day we were treated to a ski-display by our instructors which was a show of various tricks and acrobatics on skis and was very enjoyable.

Towards the middle of the week our instructors took us up to a coffee bar in a large tower from which it was possible to see Greece and Turkey. We then skied down by various routes along the mountain paths.

On the last day we had our test which was a slalom and in the evening our instructors presented us with our certificates. The week had flown by and before we realised it the morning arrived and it was time to leave.

We arrived back at school at the end of the afternoon, just in time to meet the mass exodus of buses, bicycles and cars.

We would all like to thank Mr. Mickethwaite, Mr. Cowell and Mrs. Bonham for organising a wonderful holiday.

Anne Griffiths, 5M.

MUSIC TRIP TO LONDON

During March, a party of musicians from the school took the train from Leamington to London to attend a concert given at a London Hotel, as part of a programme sponsored by Yehudi Menuhin to provide concerts for young people.

The concert was given by a Baroque Chamber Music Group, playing on exact replicas of the original 17th century flute, violin, 'cello and harpsichord. Works by Teleman, Bach and Handel were performed. After the concert, we were invited to take a closer look at and in some cases, try out, the instruments which the group had played.

After staying in an hotel, we spent the next morning at the Royal College of Music, where there is a large collection of old musical instruments, some very strange indeed; for example, the 'Glass Harmonica' the sound of which was supposed to send both listeners and performers insane! It was banned soon after its invention.

After the visit to the Royal College, the party went to the Horniman Museum of music.

Alice Emerson, L6 S.

PANCAKE RACE

Shrove Tuesday saw four L6 pancake race enthusiasts limbering up for the annual dash up the High Street.

The opposition, suitably clad in sports clothing, looked aghast when the A.G.S. contingent arrived adorned with mob-caps, aprons and Union Jack waistcoats. Rowena Swinbourne was a sight never to be forgotten in her guise as 'Mrs. Mop'.

Hampered by a trailing mob-cap and a particularly adventurous pancake, Anne Hunt managed to finish the race in last-but-one position. Alice Emerson, another entrant, came nearer the front-runners but no one could emulate the efforts of Jane Whinn whose pancake power gained her equal 2nd place.

Competitors completing the race received T-shirts donated by Fagersta, the organisers of the event.

COMMENTS FROM FOURTH FORM DIARIES KEPT AT MARLE HALL, MARCH 1979.

We were then introduced to the warden, Mr. Dyer, who spoke to us for a few minutes before being spilt into groups. (!!!)

For breakfast we had Weetabix and poached egg on fried bread. It was a good breakfast and very filling too.

I don't care what they all say about Marle Hall meals - I don't care if they say the bacon's like a leather belt, the peas are "processed" and the worm soup is really maggots, I like Marle Hall food!

We had a drink of tea and hot mince pies at 5 o'clock and at 6.30 we had our dinner consisting of mushroom soup, followed by roast pork, roast potatoes, sprouts and apple sauce, and then banana sundae. The walk was enjoyable except for the mud, rain, wind and steepness. The descent was fairly uneventful except where my complete body came face to face with the bog.

We rumbled off into the hills and visited a lovely forest with beautiful scenery, prickly prickles and cascading waterfalls.

Today we had Mr. Micklethwaite's amazing walk which we had all heard about, but personally, I don't think he really got lost - I think he knew where we were all the time, but hush! I enjoyed the walk.

Mr. Cowell kept looking at the map (did he notice it was upside down?) and confidently, when we came to a forked road, tossed for which way we would go.

I enjoyed today and I would recommend going down a mine to anyone. On the fifth district (i.e. layer in Penmachro mine) was an 80 feet deep puddle above which ten morons (A.G.S. 4th years) clung and swung from a rope. On the way out we climbed over a very sturdy bridge which, for some unknown reason, everyone had trouble with. Could it be the fact that half the bridge was in 12 feet of water or that the three wires we clung to were under 6 feet of water? Outside there was a bog (ask William about bogs) and a stream (ask Roy about streams). Out on the hill came a group of proud kids in crash helmets, waterproof macs, musical wellies and red knees.

From William — Further on I had the misfortune to come across a deep bog. Having sunk to over my knees in squelching peat, Pete Bailey and Richard Anderson dragged me out. On coming out of the mine we found ourselves running down a boggy slope. Unfortunately, Roy made an abrupt stop, but his legs decided to continue. It would have been alright if a stupid stream hadn't placed itself there centuries before, but it was a laugh seeing Foss squatting in the stream like a pregnant chicken.

Whilst we were wandering around the mines, Simon Pepper kept holding the candle up and saying: "I feel like the Statue of Liberty"! Day 3 Adventure. This sounded ominous to start with but I thought this was the best day so far — afterwards.

We had only been walking for a minute or so when it started to rain quite heavily but as this was "only a shower" and "the sun would break through at any moment" we waited five minutes before putting our waterproofs on we made it back to the minibus alive but very wet because that passing shower had kept on raining non-stop since we left the minibus.

In the mine we kept finding old relics of former days such as boots, bottles, candle-holders, even candles, nails, trucks and cranes We set off down incredibly narrow passages where even Mr. Cowell had to crawl We had to traverse an underground lake in a cavern that had no bridge or footholds. This was done by using a special belt with a clip along with the stakes conveniently placed in the wall by miners.

We come to the conclusion that Marle Hall is an opportunity you mustn't miss, it's really fantastic and great fun and we didn't have spam sandwiches every day!

'TOAD OF TOAD HALL'

This year's school play was 'Toad of Toad Hall' by A. A. Milne. The choice of play was a welcome break with tradition as it gave large numbers of junior pupils the opportunity to take part. The enthusiasm of the young cast added to this light-hearted production. The cast was as follows:- Marigold, Helen Brice; Nurse, Benedicte Foster; Mole, Suzanne Brain; Rat, Nick Strain; Badger, Nigel Braithwaite; Toad, Jonathan Howarth; Alfred, Lucy Matthews and Sian Hughes; Usher, John Matthews; Judge, Julia Hall; Policeman, Alistair Reeves; Chief Weasel, Tim Gill; Phoebe, Lydia Emery; Aunt, Sarah Hill; Weasels, ferrets, stoats and other animals, too numerous to mention!

Jonathan Howarth gave a particularly spirited performance as 'Toad', he clearly enjoyed the part, adding to the general mood of the play. The boastful 'Toad' was well supported by Nigel Braithwaite as an extremely convincing 'Badger'. His lamentations at the fate of his friend 'Toad' were excellently played. Suzanne Brain and Nick Strain both gave faultless performances. Suzanne became a favourite with the audiences as the meek Mr. Mole, and Nick was a very practical 'Ratty'.

All four characters sang well, Suzanne Brain in particular gave an excellent solo performance. Mr. Turner's inspired direction produced amusing routines to accompany the singing. The audience especially appreciated the rendition of 'A Walloping we will go'.

After a hesitant start, the 'Wild Wooders' soon became suitably evil with their weird dancing, chanting and 'Down with Toad'-ing! The special effects department provided lightning flashes and thunder claps creating a realistic scene which no doubt frightened younger members of the audience!

Lucy Matthews and Sian Hughes must be mentioned for their well-timed performance as 'Alfred', the horse, showing great skill when manoeuvring the 'canary coloured cart', usually leaving the scenery intact!

Tim Gill's cockney accent made his sarcastic mocking all the more menacing in his role as the 'Chief Weasel'.

The court scene where 'Toad' was on trial for reckless driving was visually the most successful. The assembled animals of the Jury (in costumes created by Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Holmes) made a colourful interpretation of the scene. Julia Hall as the Judge tried in vain to keep order in court and her attempts brought a fine touch of farce to the proceedings.

Alistair Reeves' north country accent and splendid facial expressions contributed to a very funny portrayal of the harassed policeman trying to keep 'Toad' in order.

Due thanks must go to Mr. Maund for the scenery construction and to the stage crew under the direction of Hugh Rowley.

The properties and scenery were of a particularly high standard this year. Miss Simm's spectacular Banquet Hall backcloth was one of the best for many years.

Make-up was by Miss Bywater, who was aided and abetted by the L6 girls. Music was under the direction of Mr. Brinson and the producer was Mr. Turner.

FRIENDS FROM FRANCE

On the evening of April 19th a coach, full of tired children, arrived from Loroux-Bottereau to stay with members of the school whom they had never met before. As is usual in these situations, the visitors were looking at us to see if they could guess who they would be staying with and we were doing exactly the same from where we were standing. It was a great help to them for each of us to be wearing a label showing the name of our French visitor.

The visit got off to a great start with handshakes and smiles all round. They really showed that they were pleased to be here.

My friend, Yves, was very pleasant company and joined in everything there was to do, entering into the English spirit. He enjoyed every meal that was put before him and found English food very palatable. He even enjoyed school dinners.

Their "English Club" had prepared them well for our way of life. We played many games after school with different groups, the English children winning most, but I am sure they will all be practising their games now on their own soil, ready for our return visit.

I think all the French children enjoyed their visit, even if they did have to have lessons in school, as we also enjoyed having them here.

I am sure everyone will be looking forward to meeting them again in the future and so carry on the friendships which have made made.

Philip Wright, 3S.

During the second week of the French group's stay, Jean-Claude Murgalé, a reporter for 'Ouest France', visited the school and accompanied the children for a few days. His report includes impressions of the visit by three of the children, Eric, Ollivier and Hélène. Here is a translation of a brief extract from his newspaper article:-

Already the Alcester school uniforms had surprised everyone. From the youngest to the oldest, the same black blazer with its red badge. For everyone a grey pullover, a white shirt, a black and red striped tie. Grey trousers for the boys, grey skirts for the girls.

And more astonishing still, the morning assembly. The whole school gathered together, 500 pupils, in the gymnasium. At the piano, unusual in such a place, a teacher plays a piece of music as the headmaster, in his black gown mounts the platform and stands in front of the polished wood lectern, facing the pupils, each one holding a small grey hymn book. There follows a hymn which everyone sings, quietly meditating. Then the headmaster reads an extract from the Bible, followed by silent prayers. Suddenly, everyone sits down on the wooden floor. The atmosphere has changed. The headmaster, in a lively tone of voice, makes some announcements. "A new mini-bus has been bought by the school to replace the old one. For the Parliamentary Elections a poster is on display for pupils who may wish to express their opinions about it."

Then, one after the other, the teachers, hitherto sitting facing the pupils, men on the left, women on the right, speak to the children about the arrangements for the day. This is a daily ritual. "It's better than our notices pinned on the board at the entrance to the school," comments Eric. "Moreover, every morning you can see all the teachers." During one school week, Eric and his faithful friend Ollivier happened to sit three times at the same table as a teacher in the dining-room at mid-day. "Everyone eats together without fuss".

Thus the days go by in this school with its old but clean buildings surrounded by a green belt of football and rugby pitches and tennis courts. All the class rooms look alike: the same old-style furniture, wooden chairs and polished desks stained with ink. On the first day, Hélène stopped in the corridor where are hung all the school photographs of pupils since 1913. "Look!" she said, "You might say they are wearing the same uniform as today!"

CHORAL SOCIETY CONCERTS

The Choral Society gave two concerts during the year. The first concert was in October, at St Nicholas' church, Alcester. The programme started with four short choral motets, soloists Mrs. Brain, Joanna Tuplin and Alice Emerson.

Then a group of musicians from the school played a Concerto by Festing; the flute soloists were Julie Hinks and Rachel Coldicutt.

The main work performed in the evening was the oratorio composed by Handel; The Creation. Soloists for this work were not members of the Choral Society, they were Mr. Green, Bill Thomas, and Gillian Astley.

The size of the audience for the concert was disappointing, though it was enjoyed very much by those who were there. The concert was repeated the next week at Coughton Church, and much better attended. At Coughton, 'The Creation' was replaced by Fauré's 'Requiem'.

The Choral Society also sang, as usual, at the school carol service.

The second concert given this year was at the school. Members of the school also performed at this concert, mainly solo items. The Choral Society sang two madrigals and two four-part folk songs. Solos were sung by Suzanne Brain, Joanna Tuplin and Alice Emerson; piano soloists were Francesca Tomkins and Adele Beard; a trio for flute, piano and clarinet was played by Julie Hinks, Jane Glaze and Jonathan Hallam; and poems were read by Stephen Dyer, Julia Hall, Sarah Hill and Suzanne Brain, who gave an excellent reading of a Hilaire Belloc 'tongue-twister'.

BARNARDO'S

The amount raised by the school for Barnardo's during 1978-79 amounts to £135.87. This consists mainly of £77.69 which came from boxes belonging to the fifth and sixth forms: I was unable to collect boxes from the main school at Easter as I usually do but I hope to arrange for their collection in September - I shall be letting members know the exact date in the Autumn term.

We missed the usual form I Christmas Tree Collection as I was absent and unable to arrange it but the welcome sum of £29.38 was raised by Julie Taylor, Karen Miller and Sally Miller who went out carol singing in the weeks before Christmas. The non-uniform day when the Juniors have their party has now become a tradition of the school and in December this brought in £28.80.

The Founders Award for outstanding service to Barnardo's has been awarded to Julie Taylor.

SCHOOLS CHALLENGE

Having selected our team by holding an internal school challenge quiz, we awaited the date of arrival of the competitors from Finham Park, our opponents in the first round of this inter-school competition.

We faced them with some trepidation as they had previous experience of Schools Challenge. One member of their team was extremely good at literature, our weak point, but as the competition continued we were pleased to find ourselves in the lead. A position which we retained to the end.

The next stage was against Rugby School and we were to compete at their school. The team, David Shore (Capt.) David Robertson, Jonathan Howarth and Jonathan Cartledge, plus the reserves and a few spectators piled into the mini-bus and set off for Rugby.

Shortly after the quiz began, Mrs. Ince was asked to be adjudicator. After the first few rounds the opposition gained a substantial lead which we failed to equal.

Although we did not reach the semi-final, it was an experience we all enjoyed.

VISIT TO LANCHESTER POLYTECHNIC

In June, a group of eager lower sixth form students set out for Coventry to discover the official (and unofficial) life of the Polytechnic.

We arrived early, which was just as well, as it took us almost twenty minutes to find our base; the illusive block 'N'.

After a brief introductory lecture, students split up to visit one of four faculties of the Polytechnic in more detail. The four faculties were Art and Design, Social Sciences, Engineering, and Applied Sciences. People who visited the Art and Design faculty had the opportunity to view many degree exhibition shows and soon learnt to avoid the lift which had a mind of its own and was unwilling to let the unsuspecting in or out!

The cafeteria lunch which followed was impressive both in choice and low prices.

In the afternoon students were allowed to visit a second of the four faculties. Those who visited the Engineering faculty could be seen struggling to our coach with large plastic souvenirs which defy description but apparently were the result of an experiment!

The group returned in the late afternoon, with a good idea of Polytechnic life. Our thanks to Mrs. Ince for organising this valuable outing.

VISIT TO THE ROYAL BOTANIC GARDENS, KEW

On the 3rd of July, one of the few really hot days of the summer term, a minibus load of biologists and other keen naturalists set out from A.G.S. at 8.30 a.m. in order to have a full day at the Royal Botanic Gardens.

Arriving at Kew we all paid the customary entrance fee of one penny. We could hear no complaints of today's high inflation rate here as this charge has remained unaltered since the Gardens were opened.

We all had plenty of time to look round the glass houses which contained such botanical wonders as the filmy ferns, the rare orchids and Swiss Cheese plants which could hardly fit into the Palm House let alone the average size living room! With most of us surviving the perils of the carnivorous plants we were able to wander through the outdoor gardens which were a beautiful site with the roses and heathers in full bloom.

I am sure that even the uninitiated who thought a plant was just a plant were thoroughly impressed with the sights of the Garden and we should like to thank Dr Preston-Mafham for a truly eye-opening day.

Rowena Swinbourne, L6N.

THE ROYAL SHOW

On Thursday, July 5th all of the second year pupils went to the Royal Show at Stoneleigh near Warwick. The best events going on were usually every hour or so, which was helpful because you can't be in two places at once.

The best event we saw was the tractor-pulling which was won by a tractor with an American-built Rolls Royce V8 Merlin engine, the type used in Spitfires, which in top gear used five gallons of petrol per minute. Another interesting event was the Australian Axemen's act, held in the Grand Ring, which was the largest show place. Logs were erected and the axemen chopped part of the wood away and into the hole put plants on which they were able to climb the log.

The show was mainly for farmers and, on different stands, machinery was presented by many big firms.

We were very surprised at the price of drinks; they were twice as much as we normally pay. Unfortunately we only had a few hours at the show and did not see as much as we would have liked.

All in all it was a very enjoyable day and, on behalf of all the second years, we would like to thank the teachers who organised an excellent trip.

Ian Parker and Andrew Richmond, 2M.

THE COMPETITION DEBATE

The debating competition organised by the Stratford-on-Avon Junior Chamber of Commerce this year, culminated in a final without our school team. Nevertheless, we contested two excellent debates against Shottery Girls' Grammar School and Bidford High School.

In the first round of the competition, we debated the relevance of the Monarchy in our society today. Despite Shottery's claims of presidential superiority, our team of Nicola Filla, Julie Hall, Julie Taylor, and Jennie Holland defended our Queen and constitution and won what was an excellent debate.

The following debate against Bidford High School, however, resulted in our defeat. The uses and legislation of euthanasia was the difficult subject debated, and our team of Julie Hall, Nicola Filla, Jennie Holland and Sarah-Jane Plant spoke in favour of euthanasia. However, Bidford's claims that euthanasia was merely a euphemism for "killing granny" won the day, and the team went on to win the rosebowl which we had, of course, held for the past year. Thanks are due to all concerned, especially Mrs. Woodcock, for a very enjoyable competition and we look forward to a successful competition next year.

Sarah-Jane Plant, 4M.

OLLA PODRIDA

For many years the 'Record' contained an item entitled 'Olla Podrida' but this section has failed to appear in recent years, due to a shortage of suitable contributions. Entries under this heading consisted of pupil "howlers", usually supplied by the staff, and unintentional staff witcisms or slips of the tongue, usually submitted by pupils. The word "olla" is from the Latin, later absorbed into the Spanish language, and means "stew-pot". "Podrida" literally means "rotten" or putrefied". The two words together are used to describe a dish consisting of meat and vegetables stewed together, but the 'Record' has always taken the heading to indicate a miscellany of accidentally humorous statements - in fact, school boy/girl/teacher "howlers".

During the year, please make a note of any likely examples you see or hear and pass them to your form representative or any member of the Editorial Committee.

J.H. (2M) thinks that "the force can be shown by a cylinder with BULBARIANS in it". (A rugby team?)

S.W. (4M): Lady Macbeth had to return with the daggers while Macbeth washed his hands, exclaiming, "Be damned you Spot". (A clear case of damning evidence?)

C.W. (4M) wrote: The country-bread child is to lose health and happiness. (And thus becomes half-baked? after being Mother's Pride?)

M.T. (1S) remembered that "Ben Gunn asked for a piece of ptarmigan cheese". (To feed to the birds? - he meant parmesan cheese - Ed.)

THE MRS. INCE INTERVIEW

Mrs. Ince was a pupil of a West Riding Grammar School in Yorkshire. Her sporting interests at the time were hockey and tennis. From here she went on to Sheffield University to read History. However, at this point she did not intend to pursue a teaching career but merely wanted to further her education and interests in history. It was only later that she "drifted into teaching". Mrs. Ince, has however, found this to be a very enjoyable profession. She has taught in a variety of places both in High Schools and in Grammar Schools. These include schools in Cornwall, Bristol, Devon, London, West Sussex and Alcester. Perhaps the most interesting is the teaching post Mrs. Ince acquired in Bermuda for a year.

Mrs. Ince has many interests, not surprisingly connected with history, including brass-rubbing, heraldry and archaeology, having once attended many digs herself. In addition, her interests in history have led to a great deal of travel during her life and she has visited such places as North America, North Africa, Europe (particularly Greece) and South East Asia (Malaysia, Thailand and Singapore). A notable point concerning her trip to Asia is that she managed to get by on her own, knowing only eight Thai words and phrases!

At one time Mrs. Ince was also interested in dinghy sailing, although more recently, motor sport has been one of her major hobbies. In fact Mrs. Ince herself owns a 1932 Austin 7. She has on occasion, even been known to put her hand to the mechanics!

When asked about any ambitions she might have, Mrs. Ince replied that she was "ashamed to confess that all my ambitions are concerned with travel, in particular to visit Persia". She would also like to learn to fly! Mrs. Ince would like to go round the world after she has retired, but informed us that she is very settled here and has no intentions of leaving, at the present. Mrs. Ince, who has been at Alcester Grammar School for almost eight years, told us that she likes the school because of the friendly atmosphere and, because the school is reasonably small, she has got to know everyone.

FIRST RAIN

*A leaf forms a perfect cup
For a bird to take a sup
Of the returning rain.
A flower holds its petals out.
After the long, thirsty drought
The water tastes so good.
The tree tops
Rejoice in the blissful cooling drops.
Each twig and leaf dripping delightfully.
The yellow parched grass,
Drinks at last
From the tiny, falling diamonds.
The flowers take a gracious bow,
To thank the large grey cloud,
For the long-awaited rain.*

Alan Baker (1S)

THE STORM

*Amidst the cold wintry weather
The distant thunder may be heard
Rolling nearer and nearer.
A streak of lightning flashes across the sky,
One, two, three, four, five.
Five miles away
Drawing closer.
Crash!
A tree has been hit
Down it falls, showing clearly the burn marks in its trunk.
Then all of a sudden all is quiet.
But . . . now,
Pitter, patter, pitter, patter, yes
The rain is coming
First slowly . . .
Now quickly . . .
Falling . . .
Beating wildly
Across the wide plain,
Falling, falling, down.*

IT'S A CAT'S LIFE

The warm, long, sunny days had arrived after the great cold, and the time for mass mice and rat killing had begun. Also the cows were calving and the bloody milk from them was our wages, as the blood made it unsaleable.

Tom, Syd and I started on our usual procedure of catching mice in the granary. I slipped in the back entrance and behind the sacks of unsold corn, Tom hid behind some machinery in the opposite corner, and Syd came slinking through the front entrance. He pounced on a mouse, his weight killing it instantly and we began to chase the remaining twenty or so between us. When they were a foot away, we jumped out and killed them all. Then we picked them all up in our mouths and, in a couple of journeys, we had them all in a heap on the farm kitchen doorstep. Then we promptly started mewling and trying to scratch the door down. This had the desired effect of bringing the farmer's wife to the door. When she saw the huge pile of mice, she gave us a large bowl of bloody milk, and left us.

After lapping up all the milk, we set off to the best place for "ratting" — the building where the chicken food is stored. We had a different method for rats. We crept in and climbed up the back of the sacks. As the sacks were arranged in steps, Tom went on the bottom, I took the middle and Syd perched on the top. When we were positioned Syd leapt off the top onto a rat and smashed its skull. The other rats, contrary to their usual behaviour, instead of fleeing when Syd chased them, turned on him and attacked him. Under that river of large, brown rats, Syd would have been killed if we had not leapt out of hiding and pulverised the rats from behind. Rats are larger, fiercer, and better fighters than mice, but, all the same, of the thirty or so rats there to begin with, twenty-seven would never fight again. The rest fled, but they would not do battle for a few months at least. We proceeded to move the bodies to the kitchen doorstep. After drinking the milk and eating the dead rats and mice, we were allowed to laze around for the rest of the morning, licking our wounds, and chasing the occasional sparrow.

WINTER

Covering everything in a white veil of flakes,
Snow elegantly falls to icy ground
Frost-bitten trees stand collecting snow on their finger-like branches.

On frost and snow-covered roof tops,
Starveling-like birds sit perishingly cold.
The scenery bleak, cold and grey,
Plants, trees and shrubs, seemingly dead are waiting.

As the weeks drift by the snow
gently melts,
Unveiling the small blades of grass and tiny plants.

Once again the trees are alive,
Daffodils and tulips push out of the Earth like tiny green spears,
At last we can say Spring is here.

THE LAUGHING SEA

*The sea is like a lady,
All clad in green and blue.
She draws young men into her midst,
Into her gleaming hue.
They think that she is docile,
They've conquered her great waves,
But then she will explode,
And send them to their graves.
The sea will laugh,
While widows cry,
For she thinks she has won.
But has she won?
What has she gained,
Causing suffering and pain?
Still she rules the young men's hearts,
And to her they will always come.
They love her from the very start,
And leave safe homes to go to sea.
When old men talk of her power,
They laugh at them for they don't see
That at her prowess they too will cower.
In the sea they love
They're doomed to die,
And she will laugh
While widows cry.*

THE SCHOOL MAGAZINE

*"The time has come", said Mr. Green,
"To do your bit for the school magazine.
I want it in Monday, dead or alive,
Else it's the library, twelve-thirty five!
Now you've got three lessons, a homework too,
So quiet please, you've work to do!"*

*We saluted smartly, fear in our eyes,
His orders we obey, no backchat or lies.
What shall I write, a story or poem?
I didn't know what, but thought "I'll show him!"
Out came my biro and extra brain,
(Mine is gradually beginning to wane!)*

*We deaden to silence and start to write,
I wonder what's on telly tonight?
Biting my pen I wait for inspiration,
Oh no it's "Crossroads" what gloom and desolation!
Dear God, it is with great hope I pray,
That you'll be able to stop "Crossroads", just this day.*

THE HEADMASTER

Mr. Turner was born in London where he lived until the outbreak of the second world war. During the war he was evacuated to South Africa to stay with relatives.

In 1945 he resumed his education in England when he attended a London Grammar School (now closing due to refusal to go comprehensive). It was at this school that Mr. Turner first took an interest in Drama, playing in many school Shakespeare productions.

Following a successful academic career in school Mr. Turner went on to read Mathematics at King's College, London and studied for his Certificate of Education at St Catherine's, Cambridge.

In reply to the question: "Had you always considered teaching as a career?", the Head replied: "Yes, I have never really considered anything else, (although I was once an actuary for six weeks!)"

Mr. Turner's first teaching post was at Bolton school where he taught for four years before leaving to take up the post of 'Head of Mathematics' at Chatham House Grammar School, Kent. "We were never allowed to forget the fact that Edward Heath was a former pupil there" Mr. Turner informed us!

Mr. Turner's next teaching posts were: Head of Maths, and later Senior Master at Henley-on-Thames Grammar School. In 1 he took up his present position - that of Headmaster at A.G.S., where he says that he is very happy and has no plans to leave.

In his spare time, Mr. Turner still pursues his interest in drama by visits to the theatre, and participated in Amateur Operatics. In addition to these interests, Mr. Turner plays the piano ("for my own amusement, but not for other people's!")

By his own admission, Mr. Turner has always had: "a poor eye for a ball". However, he enjoyed swimming at school and still swims occasionally for exercise.

When the magazine committee asked Mr. Turner for his views on the school magazine he said that he would like to see more pupil artwork in the magazine.

Mr. Turner has no immediate plans for the future, he says: "Life is best if you take it one stage at a time."

However the Head would like to see the school made bigger by a form a year to allow a wider range of subjects to be taught and better facilities for the sixth form.
